

Why Lewis', Shogenji's and FiteIsons's notions of coherence cannot be accepted

Moretti, Luca (2004) Why Lewis', Shogenji's and Fitelsons's notions of coherence cannot be accepted.

Full text available as:

Microsoft Word - Requires a viewer, such as Microsoft Word Viewer

Abstract

In this paper, I show that Lewis' definition of coherence and Fitelson's and Shogenji's measures of coherence are unacceptable because they entail the absurdity that any set of beliefs in general is coherent and not coherent at the same time. This devastating result is obtained if a simple and plausible principle of stability for coherence is accepted.

Keywords: Coherence, coherence measure, Bayesian coherence, Lewis, Fitelson, Shogenji

Subjects: General Issues: Confirmation/Induction

ID Code: 1635

Deposited By: Moretti, Luca

Deposited On: 26 Febuary 2004

Send feedback to: philsci-archive@library.pitt.edu