

Notes to aid Discussion of the Appropriate mix of Funding of Australia's Public Universities

Gavan Butler,
University of Sydney

ABSTRACT

Changes have been made to the provision of post-secondary education in Australia with little evident reflection as to the merit of the existing public universities or the nature of public education. This paper sets out some notes for the discussion that should be happening. It then lists some

