Title: Application of the comparative method in the law study

Author(s): Catalin Ionut Bucur;

Keywords: comparative method , the science of law , the general theory of law

Abstract:

Any social phenomenon that appeared spontaneously or was generated by other factors needs to be studied by various existent or recent sciences in our society. By adopting the principle that nothing is lost, everything is transforming, from the physical sciences domain, the Law's general theory, is reserved the duty to elucidate the evolution of relationships and the social reality. In order to obtain this it uses a list of methods specific only to it as a juridical science.
