Abstract:

This paper aims to emphasize the social causes that bring about the delinquent evolution of underage persons who have committed an act of murder and are imprisoned in Romanian penitentiaries. Our purpose is to highlight these causes through the corroboration of three research techniques: the case study, the semi-structured interview, and the analysis of documents. Once the causes that bring about the starting of the delinquent behaviour have been identified, the paper continues with our conclusions and suggestions concerning modalities of preventing the criminal acts committed by minors.
