Article Towards a Comprehensive Population Strategy for Nepal

Author Gerarde Gonzalez

Abstract Nepal will have a democratically elected Government within a year's time and one of its first tasks will be to define a fresh development strategy to deal with population problems, among others. This article discusses the 1983 National Population Strategy and other policy documents in light of some conceptual and methodological considerations concerning the development of a strategy. It makes suggestions for revising the strategy in view of the country's current population problems.
