Advising

Do I accept and train new psychology graduate students in general?

No

Am I accepting new graduate students in the upcoming year?

No 2016-2017

Advising notes:

I do not take students directly but I work closely with students who are advised by Dr. Kohlenberg.

Research

My research lab aims to produce research on and understanding of human closeness and social connection that integrates disciplines—including evolution science, neuroscience, anthropology and psychology—within a behavioral science foundation. The model of social connection that serves as the basis of our efforts is based on the principles of Functional Analytic Psychotherapy (FAP) and addresses established research documenting the role of social connection as a mediator of outcomes across broad and significant domains of human functioning and health. We plan to execute, stimulate, and disseminate a progressive, cross-disciplinary behavioral science research agenda that explores this model with precision, scope and depth.
