Mailing Lists & EL Teaching and Research in China

HE Xianbin(Hanshan Teachers College, Chaozhou City, Guangdong, China 521041)

Abstract: The successive founding of ELT mailing lists since the mid-90s have provided language teachers world-wide with a cheap, efficient and informative teaching tool. This paper offers an introduction to the major ELT lists and a discussion of the significance of the mailing lists to our teaching work, academic research and self development. Advice is also given on how to take better advantage of this powerful educational instrument.

Key words: mailing lists, English, teaching & research
