November 17, 2006.

At its fall meeting in October 2006, the CAA Board of Directors approved a Statement on Conflict of Interest for all CAA committees, editorial boards, and juries, and for the Board itself. This statement has been added to the list of Standards and Guidelines on the CAA website. It will also be published in full in the January 2007 issue of CAA News. Since its founding in 1911, CAA has regularly issued Standards and Guidelines—professional practices for the fields of art and art history—which are presented by CAA's committees and special taskforces to the Board of Directors for approval. CAA encourages all members, institutional and individual, to read, understand, and use these documents. Published formally since 1973, the Standards and Guidelines are divided into nine categories.
