

Publications

EXT- B- 6091

Livestock for Small Acreage Landowners

Richard V. Machen and Robert K. Lyons

- Full Text

New rural landowners are often interested in establishing livestock enterprises, even when their acreages are small. While forage availability may limit stocking rate, there are some livestock operations that can succeed on small acreages. Three of them are described in this publication--stocker calves, meat goats and hair sheep. There are details on management, facilities required, and marketing opportunities for these enterprises.

Phone: 979.845.1851

Fax: 979.845.0662

Email: twri@tamu.edu

Compact with Texans | Privacy and Security | Accessibility Policy | State Link Policy | Statewide Search

Plug-ins | Veterans Benefits | Military Families | Texas Homeland Security | Open Records/Public Information

Equal Opportunity Statement | Risk, Fraud & Misconduct Hotline

© 2013 All rights reserved. Problem with this page? Contact: twri-webmaster@tamu.edu  |  |  | SSO |

CANOPY